Lakeshore Area Network for Dairy (LAND)

Linking beginning and exiting dairy producers

Bringing today's producers together with the dairy industry's future.

How do you qualify to be part of the program?

Exiting Farmers

- You are thinking about retiring in the next few years.
- You are looking to partner with someone to ease your daily work load.
- You are looking to sell your property and business.
- You are already out of farming, but would like to work with a beginning farmer in order to use the facilities.
- Your operating or vacant farm is for sale or rent.

Beginning Farmers

- You want to start dairy farming, but cannot afford to purchase an entire working operation right now.
- You want to get some dairying experience before starting out on your own.
- You would like to rent or buy a portion of a current working operation.

How LAND worked for them:

Mark Otto

I can personally say LAND has worked for me. I was able to get a list of farmers that were looking to exit farming, and found one that worked best for me. On July 1, 2008, this was accomplished when I took ownership of 50% of the herd from Mark Herrmann. I was able to obtain ownership through the help of LAND and the Young Farmer program through Farm Service Agency. In today's farming industry, a program such as LAND is valuable for anyone looking to enter or exit dairy farming.

Mark Herrmann

Agriculture needs the next generation to get started into the business of dairy farming. LAND is working to bring people into dairy farming and connect them with farmers looking at future retirement. This is the route I took on July 1, 2008 when I sold half the cows and young stock to Mark Otto through the Young Farmer and Shared Facilities Program through Farm Service Agency. If you want to enter or exit the dairy business, contact LAND.
